SEER Rockdust in SWEDEN

My wife and I first learned about SEER Rockdust when we read the Svenska Dagbladet article in November 2006.

After visiting their website we emailed Angus Horticulture Ltd and now, 2 years on, we are really pleased we did.

We were at first sceptical, the results sounded too good to be true so we wanted to visit the SEER Centre in Highland Perthshire to see with our own eyes. And we were amazed. What we saw was really beyond our belief, a fantastic oasis out in the middle of no where. We were so convinced we returned to order our first bulk load of pallets of SEER Rockdust in 20kg bags.

Jennifer Cook, their Marketing Manager arranged to bring the SEER Centre founders', Moira and Cameron Thomson, to our Centre near Stockholm. We held a small seminar at our Garden Centre and had a good attendance of gardeners, academics and the press. Angus went on to provide us with a good supply of brochures and have helped us at every step of the way.

Now nearly two years on we have set up a network of 10 Swedish stockists of SEER Rockdust, Angus web: www.angus-horticulture.co.uk

As part of our gardeners training programme we have applied SEER Rockdust to our own gardens. The results have been spectacular – SEER Rockdust does indeed help Swedish soil to produce much bigger, healthier, tastier and more pest resistant crops.

At the time of writing this Testimonial, which we understand is to be shown on Angus's stand at GLEE 2008, we are organising our third bulk delivery of SEER Rockdust to Sweden. Yes, we agree with Cameron and Moira, our soils need SEER Rockdust to improve the soil health, the health of the crops, our own health and indeed the health of the planet.

We have no hesitation in encouraging other European companies to follow our lead and help their countries benefit from SEER Rockdust. By all means, contact us, Lars and Katharina Angstrom at Wiksunds Trädgård.
